

Digital Sinology, and the Ten Thousand Rooms Project

Professor Mick Hunter

Department of East Asian Languages & Literatures, Yale University

Monday, October 16th

4:00pm – 5:30pm

Royce 243, ALC Lounge

RSVP to alcgen@humnet.ucla.edu

Professor Mick Hunter will discuss Digital Sinology, and the Ten Thousand Rooms Project. A three-year project supported by Yale University and the Mellon Foundation, the Ten Thousand Rooms Project aims to create an online workspace for enabling collaborative research on pre-modern Chinese sources. In this workshop, Professor Hunter will introduce the platform in addition to discussing various tools (including regular expressions) that have facilitated his own research on the history of Confucius sayings and the intertextuality of early Chinese texts. Students and faculty who wish to participate in the workshop should e-mail alcgen@humnet.ucla.edu, in advance for the necessary information.